MULTI-CHANNEL AIR LOG

This new monitoring service is accessible via the ip-desktop, enabling consultation and extraction of HQ and BQ audio and video files, with the option of easily finding and listening to frequencies.

Depending on editing and consultation rights, multi-channel monitoring brings together in a calendar all the recorded feeds a station needs (multi-channel program monitoring, competing radios, programs, advertising screens, on-air microphone interventions, music).

For a quick search result, filters provide direct access links to the sample, in the form of time markers and style categories.

This new freelance interface is equally suited to on-air teams and cross-functional departments.

MULTI-FORMAT EXTRACTION

Extraction formats are fully customizable. The tool doesn't set any limits; it's more a matter of usage that guides the different formats that the application should make available to the user.

Export in high quality for on-air reuse, or in low quality for e-mail.

Whether it's the type of format or codec used in the recording engine, extractions meet the most common audio/video needs.

Extraction by segment on demand or according to a list of events available in the broadcast log.

This option, already available with the previous version, has been redesigned for even greater ease of reading.

Real-time tracking of broadcast logs completes the transversal application registers.

As advertising agencies are generally required to ensure perfect consistency between planned and broadcast elements, this new generation of logs provides even more detail on the compliance expected. Very powerful for auditing the recurrence of brands mentioned on air.

Identification of differences between theoretical and actual timing after broadcast.

Another very important function is the reporting of broadcast elements to Sacem.

SPEECH TO TEXT

This function will work for you, providing voice recognition that transcribes audio files into text.

For example, you can listen to a competitor's ad screen and get to know the advertisers before you even have to start listening, identify the music played by other radio stations, or search for key words in the microphone.

While listening, the toolbar's graphical display allows you to identify the first words transcribed by the speech-to-text generator.

This on-air monitoring tool is the perfect companion for media channels, whether you're building a best off or organizing listening committees to work on perfecting interventions.

RECORDING ACCESS

The listening stream is designed for immediate access to recordings.

The full-text search function, based on the Speech to Text implementation, which transcribes the recordings, is a highly appreciated option.

When it's a freelance job and the drivers are known, visual identification provides immediate access by type, ad, music, microphone, reviews, markers, etc.

This function facilitates searches for immediate access to on-air frequencies.

It's easy to position yourself on a news flash, or on a listener's contribution to a game.
